

L Ryan Goodrich

MPC 682, Spring 2013

2/9/13

Facebook Post

We just launched a Kickstarter for an e-magazine companion to ARPGamer's daily news website! We feel this is a fantastic outlet to "spread the love" in the ARPG genre by focusing more on this specific discipline of games. Let's face it, the ARPG industry is booming.

The Kickstarter is shooting for a rather modest sum which will help us in funding better distribution methods, subscription management, and even app development to extend the reach and convenience of our news further. For only $2 you can get our first issue of the magazine in April, a significant discount over what the post-Kickstarter price will be.

Price not good enough for you? Well, we've got content enough to make any gamer water at the mouth. Chris Taylor of Gas Powered Games, the creative force behind Dungeon Siege and Supreme Commander, has shared with us some exclusive content about their recent Kickstarter foray, Wildman. On top of that, we've got exclusive content from up-and-coming gaming developer, SaltyPepper Studios about their in-development ARPG, and NeocoreGames is also answering some important questions about The Incredible Adventures of Van Helsing.

For these exclusives alone, $2 is a steal!

<http://www.kickstarter.com/projects/1603039503/arp gamer-e-magazine>